

Process Group now forming for MFT Interns & Trainees

The first years of practicum and internships can be daunting as we're thrust into the new and challenging role of the therapist. We find ourselves wondering whether we're making an impact or applying our theories correctly. And sometimes we feel more trained in filling out paperwork and insurance forms than counseling!

In this process group we will offer a safe and confidential environment to explore your challenges, hardships, and best practices, while finding ways to tap into your unique strengths and talents. We'll explore the role of the therapist and its meaning for you, as well as how to integrate spirituality into the therapist's vocation.

Renee Skiles is passionate for people in the helping professions. Renee has worked in multiple agency settings, including outpatient hospitals, elementary schools, homeless shelters, and clinics. Previously, Renee served in urban missions for 9 years in Los Angeles and Washington D.C., where she discovered her desire to provide therapy.
